

A WEBSITE PROPOSAL · PREPARED FOR IMPACT HCC

Built to be trusted.

A boutique advisor's website has one quiet job — to make the right visitor trust you enough to reach out. This is the thinking behind how yours was designed to do exactly that, and what it costs.

Dear Joanna,

Before we get to numbers, I wanted to write to you properly — because a line-item on its own doesn't explain what your website is really meant to do, or why I approached it the way I did.

Over the weekend I went down a rabbit hole: how do boutique HR and human-capital firms actually win business from their websites? Not traffic — business. The pattern is remarkably consistent. Someone senior lands on the site and, within a few moments, has quietly decided one of two things: I trust these people enough to reach out, or I don't. Everything else is noise. For a firm like yours, that single decision is the website's job.

The lens I designed for it is the Trust Equation, from The Trusted Advisor (Maister, Green & Galford) — the book many of us in this field grew up on. It breaks trust into three things you build, divided by one you must keep low. I've set out on the next page exactly how it shaped every choice on your site.

I'll also be candid about how it was made, because it's part of why it's such good value. The research, the strategy and the creative direction are mine — deliberate, and grounded in that framework. The execution, I accelerated with the same modern AI tooling I train teams to use. That is precisely why you're receiving a build of this calibre for a fraction of what an agency would charge for the same work — senior thinking, efficient hands.

I've genuinely enjoyed this one. I'd love to walk you through any part of it in person.

*With warm regards,Shishir Babu

SHISHIR BABU · DESIGN & STRATEGY

How a website earns trust.

$$\textit{Trust} = \frac{\text{Credibility} + \text{Reliability} + \text{Intimacy}}{\text{Self-Orientation}}$$

The Trust Equation · Maister, Green & Galford

Credibility

"Do I believe them?"

A clear point of view — not a services menu. Your homepage leads with a stance and a design language that signals a firm operating at senior level. Confidence, shown — never claimed.

Reliability

"Have they done this?"

Proof, made visible. The client wall — ADNOC, Etihad, Majid Al Futtaim, ADCB and more — your partners and your track record do the reassuring, quietly and immediately. Evidence over adjectives.

Intimacy

"Do I get how they think?"

Six Insights articles and services framed as a method, not a list — so a prospect feels how you actually work and think before the first call. Familiar before you've met.

Self-Orientation ↓

"Are they here for me?"

The divisor — the one thing kept deliberately low. Minimal "we're the best" language; copy written to serve the reader's decision, not to boast. Lower self-interest, higher trust.

The more generic and self-promotional a consultancy's site sounds, the less it converts — because buyers evaluating an advisor are, whether they realise it or not, running exactly this equation. Every page of your site was built to raise the top of it and shrink the bottom.

The site, in service of that idea.

24 PAGES DESIGNED & BUILT	2 LANGUAGES · EN & ARABIC (RTL)	17 SERVICE & INSIGHT PAGES (11 + 6)	47 CLIENT & PARTNER LOGOS PREPARED
--	--	--	---

A The trust-carrying pages

Home, About, Clients, Partners and Contact — point of view, proof, and a frictionless path to the first conversation.

B 11 advisory service pages

Each service written as a stance, not a line item — so intent is felt, not just read.

C 6 Insights articles

The intimacy layer — thinking that lets a prospect trust the way you work before you speak.

D Full English ⇄ Arabic

Right-to-left Arabic across the whole site, reaching decision-makers in both languages across the GCC.

E Findable & fast

SEO, structured data, speed and accessibility — so the trust you've built actually reaches people, on any device.

F Yours, outright

You own the code. No monthly platform fee, no theme licence, no lock-in — and near-free to host.

THE DESIGN LANGUAGE

“A bespoke ‘Gulf-modernist’ system — cream, espresso and antique gold, with Cormorant & Jost — chosen so the site looks like it belongs to a firm your calibre of client already trusts.”

What the fee pays for.

#	SCOPE OF WORK	USD	≈ AED
01	Conversion research & trust strategy The weekend spent on how boutique HCC sites convert; the Trust Equation applied to your site's structure, priorities and copy. The direction everything else follows.	$850	3,120
02	Brand & art direction The Gulf-modernist visual language — colour, typography and motion — created to signal seniority at a glance.	$750	2,755
03	Core experience — 5 pages + essentials Home, About, Clients, Partners, Contact (live map), plus Privacy, Terms and a custom 404. The trust-carrying spine.	$850	3,120
04	11 advisory service pages Each service designed and written as its own point of view — assessment, compliance, recruitment, wellbeing, training and more.	$650	2,390
05	6 Insights articles A reusable editorial template plus six pieces that position IMPACT HCC as a voice — the intimacy layer of the equation.	$400	1,470
06	Bilingual English ⇄ Arabic system Full right-to-left layout, a translation dictionary across every page, and language signals for search engines.	$600	2,205
07	Findability, speed & accessibility SEO, structured data (JSON-LD), sitemap, image optimisation, caching and access — so the site ranks, loads fast and works for everyone.	$250	920
08	Launch, security & handover Go-live on Netlify/Vercel, security headers, clean URLs and documentation — so it's yours to run and extend.	$150	550

Total development fee

$4,500 ≈ AED 16,500

A DUBAI AGENCY WOULD QUOTE

AED 60k – 150k

Same scope, same bilingual build — plus account managers, overhead and margin on top.

THIS PROPOSAL

≈ AED 16,500

A fraction of it — not because it's worth less, but because the strategy is mine and the execution was AI-accelerated. Senior thinking. efficient hands.

One-time fee for the complete, delivered website. AED shown at the pegged rate (USD 1 ≈ AED 3.6725) for reference — invoiced in USD. Hosting & domain billed at cost, typically USD 0–20 / month.

Everything, delivered and yours.
